INTRODUCTION

At Thompson Coburn LLP, we take a broad view on diversity and value the myriad of contributions individuals with different backgrounds and experiences bring to our Firm. At its core, diversity is about recognizing, respecting, accepting, and valuing differences based on ethnicity, gender, color, age, race, religion, ability, national origin, sexual orientation and veteran status. Because of our individual characteristics and differences, we react and think differently approach challenges and solve problems differently, provide input and make decisions differently and see different opportunities for our Firm and our clients. We value these differences in approach and believe they strengthen our Firm, both as a service provider to our clients and as a place of employment.

- We continue to provide the Thomas F. Eagleton scholarship to support diverse 1L students.
- We elected four women and two individuals of color to our partnership.

THOMPSON COBURN RECEIVES MCCA GEORGE B. VASHON INNOVATOR AWARD

Thompson Coburn was selected as this year's recipient of the Minority Corporate Counsel Association's (MCCA) 2019 George B. Vashon Innovator Award, a recognition for organizations who have made extraordinary strides to support diverse attorneys. The award, named for the first licensed African American attorney in New York State and one of the first to practice before the U.S. Supreme Court, is presented to law firms with less than 500 full-time attorneys and "have led the way with innovative best practices to assist diverse attorneys." The MCCA evaluates law firms based on a stringent review of their diversity efforts, including diverse attorney demographics, published D&I materials, D&I events and more.

THOMPSON COBURN NAMED A D&I LEADER

Thompson Coburn has been named a D&I Leader by Lawyers of Color, a nonprofit devoted to promoting diversity in the legal profession and advancing democracy and equality in marginalized communities. The designation is awarded to law firms with a black attorney percentage of 3.8 percent or more based on data collected in the Black Student's Guide to Law Schools & Firms, the first-ever comprehensive listing of black attorney percentages at nearly 400 law firms, including the nation's largest firms.

AMERICAN LAWYER COLUMNIST RECOGNIZES TC AS A 'UNICORN' FIRM FOR NEW AFRICAN AMERICAN PARTNERS

In February, Thompson Coburn was recognized by American Lawyer columnist Vivia Chen for electing four women and two people of color to partnership. In a follow-up to a series of columns by Chen, which she used to look critically at the lack of diversity among new partnership classes at AmLaw200 firms, Chen listed several "unicorn" firms that elected African Americans to partnership. Thompson Coburn made the list – Chen noted the election of Felicia Williams and Nelson Williams – along with Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer, Drinker Biddle & Reath, Jenner & Block, Nixon Peabody, Shearman & Sterling and Akin Gump Strauss Hauer & Feld.

THOMPSON COBURN ADOPTS MANSFIELD RULE 3.0 TO ADDRESS LEGAL PROFESSION'S GENDER AND DIVERSITY GAP

Thompson Coburn has signed on to Diversity Lab's Mansfield Rule 3.0 pilot, a national initiative designed to close the gender and diversity gap in the legal profession. Mansfield 3.0 requires that participating law firms consider at least 30 percent women and diverse attorneys for promotions, senior-level hiring, significant leadership roles and inclusion on client proposals. Mansfield 3.0 is not a quota system, but simply a framework to ensure that firms consistently and consciously consider diversity when making important decisions about recruitment, retention and promotions. Thompson Coburn is committed to becoming a Mansfield Certified firm by Summer 2020. The Mansfield 3.0 initiative at Thompson Coburn will be led by partner Tony Anderson, Diversity Committee Co-Chair, and Norma Jackson, Director of Diversity, Inclusion & Professional Development.

HOMEGROWN HEROES: FELICIA WILLIAMS AND NELSON WILLIAMS REPRESENT DIVERSITY SUCCESS ALONG THE PATH FROM ASSOCIATES TO PARTNERS

FELICIA
WILLIAMS

At the beginning of 2019, Felicia Williams and Nelson Williams were elected to Thompson Coburn's 375-attorney partnership. This was no ordinary promotion; it was a milestone in our Firm's diversity and inclusion efforts. Roughly 10 years ago, both Felicia and Nelson started their legal careers as summer associates at Thompson Coburn. Their success is an excellent representation of the importance and lasting impact of diversity and inclusion initiatives.

Felicia first demonstrated her talents as the inaugural recipient of Thompson Coburn's Thomas F. Eagleton Scholarship, prior to the start of her 1L year in 2008. Felicia was a splendid candidate for the scholarship, which is awarded each year to a minority law student who embodies true leadership and shows promise as a budding law student. Over the course of her internship, Felicia proved her talent and dedication as an attorney, and went on to join Thompson Coburn as an associate in 2011. Today, Felicia continues to carry the scholarship's legacy as a mentor for other Eagleton Scholars following in her footsteps.

As an attorney, Felicia progressed rapidly from associate to partner in our Firm. Her advancement is a direct result of her success in supporting our strong commercial litigation practice, focused on complex mass tort actions, class actions, contract disputes and more. Her work directly helped the Firm achieve a defense verdict for Phillip Morris in a $1.5 billion class action matter, the largest defense verdict in Missouri in 2016.

Beyond her practice, Felicia is dedicated to bettering the Firm and the community. In 2018, Felicia was honored by the YWCA of Metro St. Louis as a Leader in the Workplace for demonstrating outstanding performance and leadership in her field. Two years earlier, she was named a "Rising Star" by Super Lawyers magazine. Her contributions and the recognitions she continues to receive set the standard for other young professionals in our Firm.

Arriving as a summer associate in 2008, Nelson would go on to join the Firm as an associate in 2011. Since then, Nelson has demonstrated forward-thinking leadership in his outstanding legal work, as well as a genuine passion for mentorship and increasing diversity in our profession.

NELSON
WILLIAMS

As a litigator for employers of all sizes, Nelson has achieved numerous significant victories for Thompson Coburn's clients. For example, Nelson played a lead role in helping a global computer software company defeat class certification in a $50 million class action. He also successfully handled a $2.1 million age discrimination lawsuit against a national distribution company. For a national communications client, Nelson won a motion for judgment on the pleadings in a wage and hour class action. Nelson's creative thinking and innovative ideas contributed to this significant victory.

Nelson serves on Thompson Coburn's Diversity Committee, where he works diligently to support our commitment to an inclusive and diverse workforce. To help replicate his own success, Nelson mentors our summer associates by reviewing their legal work, guiding their networking efforts, connecting them with partners in their desired practice areas, sharing writing and research tips and planning a number of social events.

Outside the Firm, Nelson co-chairs the Board of Directors of Forward Through Ferguson, a nonprofit group who carries out the priorities outlined in the Ferguson Commission Report. The group works to end racial disparities in the Ferguson community and larger St. Louis region.

SPOTLIGHT SERIES

The Spotlight Series is a quarterly lunch program where a select woman partner (or group of women partners) from one of our offices leads a discussion about her career path, approach to client service and business development methods. Broadcast to all of our offices and attended by both men and women attorneys, the Spotlight Series is an internal forum for partners to share their personal and professional stories with a diverse cross-office and multi-generational audience of Firm attorneys. The program allows attorneys to learn from each other and provides an opportunity, for women in particular, to share their strategies for success.

This year, the Spotlight Series focused on Krissa Lubben, our Energy Group and a panel of Chicago partners including Christina Berish, Georgia Demeros, Susan Lorenc and Anita Mauro.

IMPLICIT BIAS, CULTURAL COMPETENCY AND DE-BIAS TRAINING FOR ATTORNEYS

OVER THE COURSE OF 2019, THOMPSON COBURN LED A NUMBER OF DIVERSITY-CENTERED WORKSHOPS

- IMPLICIT BIAS

Implicit bias plays a crucial role in how we perceive people who are different, and how those first impressions can dramatically affect our perception of another person. Recognizing implicit bias only goes so far when it comes to forging spaces of real inclusion in the workplace. The hard work of inclusion requires us to go beyond implicit bias and into the difficult discussions of racial, ethnic and identity differences. Implicit bias is only the start of the journey, not the end. To help address these issues, we made an Implicit Bias Workshop available to all attorneys and staff, led by Michelle Silverthorn of Inclusion Nation. By April of this year, over 90% of our Firm had completed the training.

- DE-BIAS WORKSHOP

Talent management systems are especially vulnerable to issues of implicit bias. From attracting successful diverse talent to implementing structured succession plans, the goal of a successful debiasing program is to ensure that objective standards are implemented and followed through at every level. In the Make Diversity Matter workshop held on September 9th and 10th, Michelle Silverthorn of Inclusion Nation worked with members of TC's Management Committee, Associate Review Committee and Human Resources team on practical steps to interrupt and end bias in their hiring and evaluation roles in the Firm. Following the journey of a new associate of color named "Jasmine", participants answered the questions that could have changed her all too common path at her large law firm: What language should we use in our job postings? What relationships do we build with law schools and recruiters? Are we recruiting and hiring from diverse slates? What competencies have we set out for evaluations? What tasks do we expect high potentials and high-performers to have achieved? Are there cultural misunderstandings that are termed performance issues? By the end of this workshop, participants understood the challenges presented by bias in the legal profession and designed solutions that work to make diversity matter for good.

- CULTURAL COMPETENCY WORKSHOP

Cultural competency is the ability to shift cultural perspectives and adapt our behavior to cultural commonality and difference. It requires clear cultural self-awareness and a deep understanding of the experiences of people from different cultural communities. Cross-cultural competency allows us to successfully practice in a globally-oriented workplace. Cultural competency allows us to achieve optimal team performance. Studies clearly demonstrate that teams with leaders who acknowledge and support cultural differences out-perform those who do not. In the workshops held on September 9th and 10th, participants examined cultural competency by reviewing the cultural competency continuum – denial, polarization, minimization, acceptance and adaptation. They also discussed the five habits of cultural competency that every professional needs to understand and adopt in order to move through the continuum.
