Christine assists clients in a variety of business litigation matters in state and federal courts.

Christine is experienced in all phases of litigation, from early stage analysis through discovery and dispositive motion briefing to final judgment. She drafts pleadings and dispositive motions, provides research assistance and discovery support, and assists trial teams. Christine also provides pro bono representation to litigants in landlord-tenant cases and individuals in need of protection from domestic violence.

As a law student at the University of Illinois College of Law, Christine served as a teaching assistant for legal research and writing and competed in several trial team arenas.
