Chris counsels businesses on effective strategies for resolving difficult and complex scenarios.

Prior to joining Thompson Coburn, he served as a judicial law clerk for Hon. M. Douglas Harpool in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Missouri. Chris also served as assistant circuit attorney in the St. Louis Circuit Attorney's Office, where he represented Missouri in prosecutions for crimes ranging from misdemeanors to homicides. His work has provided significant courtroom and analytical experience, spanning a wide array of legal issues.

Prior to law school, Chris worked in policy at the Manhattan District Attorney's Office and served as a Fulbright scholar in Santiago, Chile, where he researched microfinance and wrote for The Santiago Times.
