Kelly is an associate in the Firm's business litigation practice.

Kelly comes from a corporate background. Prior to her law career, she worked for twenty-two years in corporate strategy, brand, and marketing in the media, sports, entertainment, and hospitality industries.

Before joining Thompson Coburn, Kelly was a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Hal R. Ray for the Northern District of Texas.

In law school, Kelly was the chief reporter for the Law Review journal Accessible Law, which breaks down the law and legal topics and is written for non-legal professionals. She graduated first in her class and received eight CALI Excellence for the Future Awards. Kelly was selected to the Order of Barristers and competed in the TEX-ABOTA Mock Trial, where she and her team made it to the semi-finals, bringing home the 4th place title.
