Associate, 2020-2021

Lindsay handles general commercial litigation matters, focusing on railroad litigation, product liability, and toxic torts.

Lindsay diligently represents manufacturers, retailers, and distributors in both state and federal courts. She performs legal research, drafts pleadings, and helps to develop and execute strategy at all stages of litigation. Lindsay also develops and argues pretrial motions, manages discovery, and defends party depositions, all while prioritizing and protecting her clients' business objectives.

Lindsay received her J.D. from Saint Louis University School of Law, where she served as a Managing Editor of the Saint Louis University Law Journal. She was also a student attorney in the Criminal Defense Clinic, served as a judicial Extern for the Honorable John M. Bodenhausen, and completed an externship with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Missouri.

Prior to joining Thompson Coburn, Lindsay worked as a litigation associate at a boutique law firm where she represented municipal clients in civil cases. In this capacity, she helped obtain temporary restraining orders and permanent injunctions for violations of city codes, litigated tax disputes and defended cities and city officials in lawsuits over zoning decisions.
