Mark represents financial entities and commercial borrowers in all aspects of real estate lending and finance, including workouts and restructurings.

Mark advises U.S. and international banks as they finance real estate loans, sales, redevelopment and new construction across the country. He has particular experience in real estate workouts and restructurings (both inside and outside of bankruptcy) on both the lender and borrower side and in construction lending and bridge acquisition financing.

Mark also represents companies buying or selling real estate (including multifamily, shopping centers and commercial properties) and advises them on leasing matters as well.

Mark has worked on deals that have financed electrical and hydroelectric plants, retail and office locations, multi-family housing, gas stations, manufacturing facilities and warehouse space.
