Nabutsingso "Mimi" Hoshut focuses on resolving complex commercial disputes through strategic legal counsel.

As a former health care administrator, Mimi's legal career follows a decade of experience in the complex operational and regulatory issues facing medical providers and entities. Mimi earned her law degree while working full-time, graduating first in her class with 25 CALI Excellence for the Future awards and the Order of Barristers honor. During law school, she served as Acquisitions Editor on Law Review and Podcast Committee Chair on the Board of Advocates (launching Per Say, UNT's first law school podcast). Mimi won First Place in a state-wide legal writing competition hosted by Baylor Law School; received the Dallas Bar Association Health Law scholarship, and earned the State Bar of Texas Appellate Division's Excellence in Appellate Advocacy Award.
