

insights

TYPES NOT MAPPED YET August 05, 2019 | TTR not mapped yet | Claire M. Schenk

Blog browse: Credit for cooperation: What you need to know about the DOJ's new guidelines for FCA investigations

In May 2019, the U.S. Department of Justice issued new guidelines regarding cooperation and remedial efforts with False Claims Act investigations. The guidelines, 4-4.112, detail the credits individuals and entities may receive during investigations. These guidelines do not change an entity's or individual's right to not cooperate with a government investigation.

Read the full article here: "Credit for cooperation: What you need to know about the DOJ's new guidelines for FCA investigations"

authorsTest

claire

Claire M. Schenk