I work creatively and efficiently to help clients achieve victory, delivering solutions that keep them out of the courtroom and focused on business.

overview

Tony Blum's practice encompasses a broad spectrum of intellectual property, speech-related and technology matters, including patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, defamation and right of publicity.

Tony represents clients—from small startups to multinational corporations—in litigation before federal district courts, courts of appeal and administrative agencies, including the Federal Circuit, the Patent Trial and Appeal Board (PTAB) and the International Trade Commission (ITC). His work includes managing inter partes review and other post-grant proceedings before the PTAB.

Beyond litigation, Tony advises clients on safeguarding intellectual property and resolving contractual issues, including breaches of IP licensing agreements. Working closely with in-house counsel, he develops strategies that align legal objectives with business goals, striving for creative solutions to efficiently and effectively resolve disputes. Tony immerses himself in clients' businesses, enabling seamless communication with internal stakeholders, from executives and engineers to sales and marketing teams.

Clients benefit from Tony's strong foundation in computer science and his experience across numerous technical and scientific fields. His work spans a wide range of technologies and industries, including telecommunications, software, artificial intelligence, cryptography, e-commerce, biotechnology, agriculture, security devices, medical devices, lighting, consumer products, financial products and mechanical inventions.

in my free time

I have three kids, so most of my free time is spent in "dad mode." I love traveling with them, especially to family in China. Putting aside the well-known spots like the Great Wall, I will always remember visiting the Nanputuo Temple with my oldest in Xiamen. More recently, we had a blast at the El Yunque National Forest in Puerto Rico. My favorite (pre-kid) spot is probably Langkawi, Malaysia, or perhaps Venice, Italy, where I spent a summer. I also enjoy playing tennis for fun when I get the chance.
