Drawing on my experience in the law and as a CPA, I represent banks and other financial institutions in a range of commercial lending transactions.

overview

Jessica Wang represents financial institutions in secured commercial lending transactions, bringing a unique blend of legal expertise and financial acumen to her practice.

Before pursuing her legal career, Jessica became a certified public accountant, gaining extensive experience in the public and private sectors. She began her career in the financial services tax group of a Big Four international accounting firm and later advanced to a role at a multinational publicly traded corporation.

In addition to her law degree, Jessica holds a master's degree from New York University Stern School of Business.
